

Anderson, B. Monster Chefs. The horribly horrible monster king summoned his four equally horrible chefs. "I am tired of eating only eyeballs and ketchup," roared the king. "Find me something new to eat or you will find yourselves on my menu!" Trembling with fear, they each set off in a different direction to look for something truly scrumptious. But what, besides eyeballs and ketchup, could a monster king possibly want to eat? What one finally brings back may change dinnertime in the kingdom forever! jP Anderson

Bloch, S. You Are What You Eat and Other Mealtime Hazards. Mealtime should be a piece of cake, but this finicky eater eats like a bird. And that drives his mom bananas because he really should have three square meals a day nut? Maybe he'll discover that variety is the spice of life! Children might find these sayings puzzling at first, but the illustrations which mix whimsical line drawings with photographs of inanimate objects, make everything clear... and will leave readers of all ages pleased as punch. jP Bloch

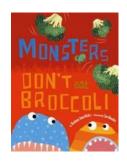

Child, L. I Will Never Not Ever Eat a Tomato. Lola is a fussy eater. A very fussy eater. She won't eat her carrots (until her brother Charlie reveals that they're orange twiglets from Jupiter). She won't eat her mashed potatoes (until Charlie explains that they're cloud fluff from the pointiest peak of Mount Fuji). There are many things Lola won't eat, including — and especially — tomatoes. Or will she? jP Child

Cotterill, S. Nope. Never. Not for me! Children are often picky eaters and convincing them to try new foods can be achallenge. In this engaging story, a young child refuses to try a bite of broccoli--that is, until her mom guides her through a careful exploration of the new food. First she looks, then she sniffs, then touches, and finally takes one tiny bite. What do you know? Broccoli isn't so overwhelming after all! jP Cotterill

Flaherty, A. The Luck of the Loch Ness Monster: A Tale of Picky Eating. Once upon a time, on a long, slow trip to Scotland, a little girl named Katerina -Elizabeth tossed her oatmeal overboard—again, and again, and again. She was a picky eater, and oatmeal was her least favorite food. And once upon a time, a small worm, no bigger than a piece of thread, swam alongside an ocean liner bound for Scotland and ate bowl after bowl of tossed oatmeal. He had never tasted anything as wonderful as oatmeal in his whole life. This whimsical picture book tells a picky (and not-so-picky) eater inspired story of the legendary Loch Ness Monster! jP Flaherty

Hicks, B. Monsters Don't Eat Broccoli. In this rollicking picture book monsters insist they don't like broccoli. They'd rather snack on tractors or a rocket ship or two, or tender trailer tidbits, or a wheely, steely stew. But boy do those trees they're munching on look an awful lot like broccoli. Maybe vegetables aren't so bad after all! jP Hicks

Hoberman, M. The Seven Silly Eaters. Peter wants only milk, Lucy won't settle for anything but homemade lemonade, and Jack is stuck on applesauce. Each new addition to the household brings a new demand for a special meal. What's a mother to do? jP Hoberman

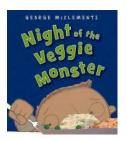

LaRochelle, D. How Martha Saved Her Parents from Green Beans. Martha HATES green beans. When some mean, green bandits stroll into town, anyone who ever said "Eat your green beans" is in big trouble. But when the beans kidnap Martha's parents, Martha is forced to take action. She can think of only one way to stop the villainous veggies from taking over her town, and it's not pretty...or tasty!

Sharmat, M. Gregory, the Terrible Eater. Gregory isn't like most goats. Instead of indulging in delicacies like old shoes, boxes, and bottle caps, he prefers to eat fruits, vegetables, eggs, and fish. Mother Goat and Father Goat are worried, but they finally get Gregory to eat like a proper goat, he doesn't just eat like a goat---he eats like a pig! Will Gregory be able to find a healthy balance before he eats everything in the house? jP Sharmat

Wells, R. Felix Eats Up. Felix brings the same lunch to school every day: sprouts on buttered oat bread. He will also eat pasta with butter. And he loves macaroni and cheese. No need to try anything new. But on the night of his friend Fiona's half-birthday celebration, Felix finds himself facing down an unfamiliar – and anxiety-provoking – menu. Will he leave the restaurant hungry, or can Fiona convince him to give new tastes a try? jE Wells

Willems, M. I Really Like Slop! It's lunch time, and Piggie is making one of her favorite treats – slop. She really likes slop, and she wants her friend Gerald to try some. Gerald isn't interested because of the smell, but Piggie is his best friend. Will Gerald find the courage to try it? jE Willems

Ziefert, H. The Princess and the Peas and Carrots. Rosebud is a little girl who likes everything "just so"--her outfits, her room, her meals, etc. When presented with a dinner plate whose meal components are decidedly not "just so"--she pushes it all away, and, right off the table. Now, nothing is just so and everything is not right. After securing her promise to stop fussing, her parents help her get things back in good order, and the peas and carrots turn out to be really quite delicious! jP Ziefert
